Translation of Grade

To translate your school grade into the German grading scale please use the so-called Bavarian formula:

$$N = 1 + 3 \cdot \frac{P_{\max} - P}{P_{\max} - P_{\min}}$$

- Maximum grade (P_{\max}) minus the grade you reached (P), divided through maximum grade (P_{\max}) minus lowest sufficient grade (P_{\min})
- Then multiply the result by three, plus 1.
- Please indicate clearly the minimum and maximum grade in your country.

The bachelor's and master's scholarships may be revoked at any time for the future or taken back with retroactive effect at the discretion of the funding committee, if circumstance exist or are known, suggesting a lack of suitability for promotion of the scholarship student.

This applies in particular, but not exclusively, if

- the scholarship was obtained by incomplete or inaccurate information or the promotion has been obtained in any other way
- commitments were not meet by the scholarship student, in particular a violation of the ISM "Code of Conduct"
- facts concerning the students behavior or appearance are known by third party which are likely to damage the reputation of the ISM

Federal training assistance act (BAföG)

The purpose of BAföG is to provide training assistance for those students who are not able to finance a course of training that suits their talents and interests, provides if they meet the criteria stipulated in BAföG. The act represents a sound contribution towards the establishment of equal opportunities in education. When introducing BAföG, the federal legislators considered it a constitutional duty to ensure that young people could benefit from comparable opportunities when embarking on careers, despite considerable differences in their social backgrounds. Although BAföG has undergone various amendments during its 40 years, this guiding principle still applies today. Such as all social security benefits, training assistance can only be claimed if the individual's financial means have been exhausted. For this reason, BAföG is dependent on family circumstances; the income of the student, his/her spouse, and his/her parents are all taken into consideration.

Who is eligible?

German nationals and students from EU or EEA Member States may be eligible for training assistance if they meet certain conditions: generally, applicants must live in Germany, and EU/EEA citizens must either as children have freedom of movement within the EU, or have themselves been gainfully employed in Germany. Other foreign nationals with certain legal statuses (for example, a permanent residency status) may also be eligible. Furthermore, training assistance can be awarded to other foreign nationals if they - or at least one parent - have been gainfully employed in Germany for several years prior to the commencement of training.

Overseas students coming to study in Germany and not meeting any of the above criteria are generally not entitled to BAföG support.

Funding the integrated term abroad

BAföG for studying abroad

BAföG for a study/internship abroad is usually possible only after a full year if studying in Germany. Since the need for the additional services provided by the BAföG surcharge regulation (foreign allowance, travel expenses, tuition fees abroad) can be significantly higher than in Germany, students who otherwise would not receive support because of their amount of income (applicant, parent, spouse) at home, may be entitled for educational grant. The scholarship application should be submitted to the responsible grant authority at least six month before the departure. Further requirement for international students is the ownership of a residence permit, or the ownership as a spouse, partner or child of a foreigner with permanent residence permit.

DAAD

The DAAD supports more than 100,000 German and international students and scholars all over the world every year - making it the world's largest funding organization of its kind.

The DAAD's various scholarships can be viewed under the following scholarship database.

<https://www.daad.de/en/>

Further information on the application procedure can be found at daad.de.

The Erasmus+ and PROMOS scholarships are available through funding from the DAAD. These two scholarships will then be awarded directly through the ISM. Therefore, please contact the International Office of your ISM Campus.

ERASMUS scholarship

Erasmus+ International scholarships for students are awarded directly by the ISM. Students who wish to go abroad through the Erasmus+ program should contact the International Office for further information and advice. The possible funding sum currently amounts to between 150 and 500 euros per month as a subsidy towards the cost of living. For an internship, students can receive a funding sum of at least 250 to the maximum amount of 700 euros. The funding level is based on three country groups (created according to cost of living), which the EU Commission has established. Erasmus+ scholarships can be combined with BAföG and the German fellowship.

PROMOS scholarship

Very high-performance students can receive a PROMOS scholarship to fund their foreign terms. The monthly funding is about 300 euros (which varies according to the target country and is based on the DAAD countries). The PROMOS foreign scholarships for students are awarded directly by the ISM. Please contact the International Office of your ISM Campus directly for details.

Please note that the Erasmus+ and the PROMOS scholarship cannot be combined with each other.

Fiscal aspects

Marketability

For those for whom the ISM is a secondary form of education i.e. they have already completed a vocational training, study or vocational qualification courses, the study fees and the total costs (literature, board / second home, travel to the university etc and if the student pays for them themselves, advertising costs) are tax deductible, even in future years.

For those for whom ISM is an initial training course and at the same time have a taxable income, the above-mentioned costs can be written off as special expenses. However, this is only possible up to a maximum of 6,000 euros and can only be applied in the year in which the costs actually incurred, it is not possible to carry them forward to future years. At the moment it is the opinion of the Bundesfinanzhof that this system is unconstitutional and this is why the scope of tax deductibility is currently the subject of various tax court proceedings.

If the parents or third parties bear the costs, parts or the entire study expenses are potentially tax-deductible for the parents.

For an individual assessment, an accountant should be able to advise directly.

Student Jobs

In addition to the various practical experiences that you will gain during your studies, a student job is a great way to supplement your wallet and, at the same time, make useful contacts with potential employers. We recommend not working more than 10 hours per week during the lecture periods. So, please be aware that you first of all a student.

There is definitely an impact on earning potential depending on which form of employment is chosen:

- Student trainee

In this field of employment, salary varies according to industry, employer, degree program and scope of activity. The study must take priority. Therefore, working students are allowed to work a maximum of 20 hours per week. Contributions for health and long-term care insurance only accrue if the earnings exceed 450 euros per month. The BAföG will also not be affected by the earnings if this allowance is not exceeded during the approval period

- Vacation job

In the case of a vacation job, the employment relationship is always limited to a fixed period and may not exceed 50 working days or two months per calendar year (from 2019 onwards). If more than 900 euros a month are earned, the employer is obliged to pay the taxes to the tax office. However, you can get back the money in the form of a tax return at the end of the year, if the basic allowance is not exceeded. A tax declaration is necessary

- Mini job

With this employment form, a maximum monthly salary of 450 euros is possible. In addition, a flexible work schedule is often possible and one has the right to basically leave and continue receiving pay in case of illness. Another advantage: The gross income is "net" because the employee has no tax liability due to low income

- Midi job

Where the mini-job ends, the Midi job begins: This type of job is for someone who regularly earns more than 450 euros, but at the most 850 euros per month. Someone who chooses a Midi job works in the so-called glide zone (workers have to pay depending on income, gradually increasing contributions to the pension insurance). Contributions to health, long-term care and unemployment insurance do not apply to students as long as they stay below the limit of 20 weekly hours. Unlike the Mini job, the Midi job is fully taxed. If the monthly income exceeds 450 euros, you have to compulsorily insure yourself.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR FOREIGN STUDENTS

Students from the European Union, Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway and Switzerland have free access to the German labor market and are practically equal to German students in this respect. For students from other countries special legal rules apply: International students from other countries may work a maximum of 120 full or 240 half days a year (regulation of 2018). You may not become self-employed or work freelance. If you want to work more, you need the approval of the Employment Agency and the Immigration Office. It depends on the labor market situation: In regions with low unemployment, the chances are better.

As an international student, it is important to know the labor law regulations. Anyone who violates this can be expelled from Germany. If you have any questions about the conditions, please contact the International Office or the Immigration Office.
